

CAHILL FUNERAL IS ATTENDED BY MANY THOUSANDS

Cortege for Borough President the Largest Ever Seen on Staten Island.

The body of Borough President Matthew J. Cahill of Richmond Borough lay in state in Borough Hall, George S. I., from 8:45 until 10:30 o'clock to-day and was viewed by hundreds. The body was to have arrived at the Hall at 8 o'clock, but so great was the throng of friends at the house that the delay of three-quarters of an hour was occasioned. The cortege was preceded by 100 mounted police, who led the funeral procession from the hall to St. Peter's Catholic Church in New Brighton, where a solemn requiem mass was celebrated by Mr. Charles A. Cassidy, a lifelong friend of the dead President. Twenty-four of the New York Police Glee Club were at the church to render special music. The floral tributes were so many that more than half a dozen automobiles were necessary for their transportation to the church and later to St. Peter's Cemetery in West New Brighton.

The funeral procession, it was said, was the largest ever witnessed on Staten Island, nearly every civic and fraternal organization being in line. Mayor Hylan and the members of the Board of Estimate followed the family on foot to the church and from there are to ride to the cemetery.

Following the mounted police was the Fire Department Band, and in their wake there walked members of the civic associations of Staten Island, war veterans, Democratic County Committee, all preceding the hearse in closed automobiles, and then followed Mayor Hylan and other city officials, including the Board of Estimate, who were honorary pallbearers, and the Board of Aldermen, fraternal organizations and city employees.

Many hundreds were disappointed because of their inability to get into Borough Hall. The route from the hall to St. Peter's Church was crowded with men, women and children. It being estimated that there were not less than 10,000 in addition to the marchers. The church is the largest in Richmond Borough, but could not accommodate one-third of those who desired to gain entrance.

The family and relatives occupied seats in the church to the right of the casket while the Board of Aldermen and the other city officials sat on the left. Police Inspector William Bailey had charge of the police arrangements.

Mayor Hylan and the other officials formed part of the cortege to St. Peter's Cemetery in West New Brighton, following in automobiles. Hundreds walked the entire four miles to the place of interment.

The Aldermen of the borough will meet to-night and decide on President Cahill's successor. Mayor Hylan has notified them to be at the City Hall at noon to-morrow to make known their choice.

Horse Fattens in the Pasture While Owner Sleeps in Stall

Band Escorts Farmer to Stable, Where Friends Bed Him Down on Hay.

LYNN, Mass., July 17.—Raymond W. Putnam of Wakefield completed his sentence this morning to sleep in his horse's stall while the animal was turned out in a rich pasture. The penalty was imposed last Thursday by Judge Riley in the Malden District Court because Putnam had not fed the horse properly or provided it with sufficient bedding.

Returning in high spirits about midnight Saturday from an Italian fireworks display in honor of a feast day, and escorted by members of a band that had given a concert at the celebration, Putnam put on an old blue suit and went to sleep in the stall on his farm.

He was up with the birds yesterday morning, went into the field where his horse was feasting on green grass, and last night retired early on hay that friends had placed in the stable.

"I intend to write a book, 'Two Nights in a Horse's Stall,'" Putnam told reporters.

Chief Pollard of the Wakefield police had an order to keep patrolmen on watch at the stable to see whether Putnam obeyed the sentence of the court.

Inmates of a woman's home near the stable to-day declared that since the sentence on Putnam the horse had taken on flesh.

LADY NELSON HEIRLOOM IS STOLEN BY BURGLARS

Branch Originally Belonged to Wife of England's Naval Hero.

Miss Regina Kohl, a singer, who lives with her mother and sister, Leona, at No. 47 West Eighth Street, returned with the family to her apartment last night after a day's outing to find the place in confusion. Burglars had entered the apartment by the fire escape or with a key.

Miss Kohl told the police that among the articles stolen was a cameo brooch which had belonged to Lady Nelson, wife of Lord Nelson, hero of Trafalgar Bay, that had descended to her mother who was a Nelson. A string of pearls which was taken, she said, was practically of no value. The robbers got also $10 in money.

SKIPPER SAYS FOG WORST HE HAS MET

Columbia of Anchor Line Sights Huge Iceberg Dead Ahead.

Capt. David W. Bone brought the Columbia of the Anchor Line into this port to-day through what he called the thickest and most dangerous fog he has met in all his seafaring life.

Capt. Bone, who is the author of several books, said he ran into the fog last Wednesday just after noon.

Thursday there was a break in the gloom, but only enough to show him a huge iceberg three miles dead ahead. The muck closed in again and the haze was invisible when the ship passed it, though its chill was perceptible.

The Columbia was delayed two days by the fog and Capt. Bone was on the bridge for a hundred hours without a break.

FOUGHT WITH HOLDUP MEN.

Daniel Murphy, thirty-four, of No. 22 East 23d Street, fought with two men he says tried to rob him in St. Gabriel Park early to-day. He was beaten with a blackjack but his assailants were frightened away before they got his money. Later he pointed out two men in a restaurant at Third Avenue and 24th Street and they were arrested. They gave their names as William Clifford of No. 639 First Avenue and John Donohue of No. 325 East 37th Street.

GIRL BITTEN BY CAT CHASED INTO CROWD

Jumps on Her Neck, Inflicting Wounds, as Women Scream.

Jumping into a crowd waiting for a trolley car at Manhattan and Greenpoint Avenues, Brooklyn, this morning, a cat jumped on the neck of Peggy Appell, four years old, No. 226 East 33d Street, Manhattan, and bit and scratched her painfully. Mrs. Mary Appell, the mother, in tearing the animal off also was bitten. Both were treated by an ambulance surgeon and later went to the Pasteur Institute.

Half a dozen children had chased the cat through the streets and it ran towards the crowd. As several of the women screamed, the animal jumped on the little girl's neck and commenced to scratch and bite. Half a dozen deep scratches were inflicted before the mother could pull the animal away. The cat then attacked Mrs. Appell and inflicted several wounds.

Finally the animal was beaten off and made its escape in the cellar of a house.
